Community Garden Notes

The summer storms have definitely helped plants shoot up in the garden. Unfortunately the weeds are competing for first place in claiming garden space. But, we are fortunate to have had help from May Banks and her granddaughter, Drema with pulling those persistent weeds. Kenny Bosley has used his pruning shears to shape and trim the bushes all along the fence and even some overhanging tree branches. Tina Moody has been helping out too with planting flowers along the fence. The canna lilies that are sprouting were planted by John and Ann Seren. Gabriel Levert returned for his second summer earning Community Service Credits by working in the garden weekly. He is the grandson of Imogene Williams and will be a senior at Bishop Hartley High School this fall. Thanks to the pruning, we can better see the sculpture on the North side of the garden. It depicts a character from Aminah Robinson’s children book, A Street Called Home. The Ragaman was an actual individual who lived and roamed the Eastside neighborhood. St. Dominic is privileged to have one of the many characters. Mt. Vernon AME Church and the Ward YMCA are two others.
